

et choice is the one you never ings off because you don't care. You put them off e too much, and you're waiting for the one right make regret impossible.

he aisle, comparing options. You've built the u've asked for one more opinion. None of it nty. It produces delay, and delay makes the y default.

is is not carefulness. It's fear dressed up as costs you more than any wrong choice ever not tell you to stop thinking. It shows you that the k of choosing wrong. It's the habit of choosing

A FIELD GUIDE • FOR THE STUD

DECISIONAL PROCRASTINATOR

The Complete Guide to Breaking Your Decisional Procrastination Pattern

H O R

and spent years studying the mechanics of self-ing his own exit. He writes about r, and the surprisingly simple mechanisms that

JONATHAN NORTHWOOD

WRITTEN BY

JONATHAN NORTHWOOD