

avoiding the task. You're ow it feels.

work is hard. It's that thinking about it produces a stand. Boredom. Anxiety. Overwhelm. So you put ief is real, and the habit deepens.

schedules, the self-care, the waiting for the right ail for the same reason: they treat the feeling as a open before you can work. It never opens.

care how you feel. You can run from a burning being in the mood for running. The feeling is real, the thing stopping you.

not ask you to become unfeeling. It shows you work is what repairs the mood, and that waiting for t keeps it broken.

A FIELD GUIDE • FOR THE STUDENT

EMOTION REGULATION PROCRASTINATOR

The Complete Guide to Breaking Your Emotion-Regulation Procrastination Pattern

H O R

and spent years studying the mechanics of self-ing his own exit. He writes about r, and the surprisingly simple mechanisms that

JONATHAN NORTHWOOD —

---

WRITTEN BY

JONATHAN NORTHWOOD