

You are the

Perfectionist Procrastinator

You delay starting or finishing work because you want everything to be flawless. Your impossibly high standards create paralysis and fear of producing anything 'imperfect.'

START HERE

Set 'good enough' standards for different tasks

Strategies That Work For You

- Set 'good enough' standards for different tasks
- Use iterative approaches (draft, revise, improve)
- Focus on progress over perfection
- Set time limits to prevent endless revision
- Celebrate completion, not just perfection

Your Strengths

- High attention to detail and quality
- Strong standards and ethical approach
- Ability to produce exceptional work when conditions are right
- Continuous improvement mindset

Often Confused With

These patterns overlap. If your result only half fits, it's worth reading about these too.

Avoidant Procrastination

Impossible standards and fear of failure are close relatives in the research.

Decisional Procrastination

When every option has to be the best one, choosing becomes impossible.
